

Ingwersen & Taylor has been helping businesses and business owners for nearly three decades. Our professionals help lay the legal foundation for your business, offering solutions that adjust to each new stage of your business's lifespan. We have been privileged to work with and lay the structure for businesses that are now well-established and thriving companies.

We help to answer the questions about your business that you didn't realize you should be asking, and to plan for the "what ifs." What business structure should you choose? Why do you need bylaws or an operating agreement? What happens to your business after your death? Can your partners give away their business interests, leaving business decisions in the hands of others? What value can a buy-sell agreement provide to you? As a business owner, you have many decisions to make and we can help to simplify that process.

- Business Organization
- Business Planning
